The Englishman (in the 1700s) says to himself, this is the work of my countrymen, who when convulsed by factions, afflicted by a variety of miseries and wants, restless and impatient, took refuge here. Here he sees the industry of his native country displayed in a new manner and traces in their works the embryos of all the arts, sciences, and ingenuity which flourish in Europe. Here he beholds fair cities, substantial villages, extensive fields, an immense country filled with decent houses, good roads, orchards, meadows, and bridges, where a hundred years ago all was wild, woody and uncultivated.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

In closing this year I think it appropriate to reflect on the accomplishments of 1977 and anticipate those yet to come in 1978. Thanks are in order to the entire membership for making 1977 a year in which the Society reached an all time high in membership, library holdings and money in the bank. The only trouble with expressing thanks is that we might accidentally overlook someone who so richly deserves it. In risking that eventuality and in addition to those I have already thanked on this page, I would like to mention Jane Newstetter and Doris Sprague for their help in the library during the absence of our regular librarian, Shirley Roby for her typing of the Ethel Moss Library Inventory, Harry Titus for his assistance in publishing the December issue of ANCESTORS WEST, Isaac A. Bonilla for the donation of a framed Armstrong genealogy to the Society, those monthly donors of snacks to go with the coffee, and so many more for their interest, enthusiasm and tangible contributions.

Regarding the future, I cannot promise these projects will materialize, but at this time it surely looks like they will and plans for their completion are definitely underway. Possibly even before the new year comes in we can expect to see all of the genealogical holdings of the Santa Barbara Public Library moved to the Goleta Branch. They will be at our meeting site on a temporary basis, but for an extended period of time. An inventory of the genealogical holdings in the Gledhill Library (Santa Barbara Historical Society) should be forthcoming as well as an up-dated listing of all the exchange magazines in our Society file. Look for them as a feature in ANCESTORS WEST or as a special publication. The Adult Education class in Genealogy, taught by our Bette Root, has met with such success that it will be repeated in 1978 beginning on 9 January and running for 12 weeks.

I feel it my duty to remind you of the By-Law revisions passed by the membership at our 1 October 1977 meeting. As of press time there are no plans to reprint the By-Laws, but your copy will be completely up to date if you will make the following corrections:

ARTICLE VIII, Section 1, Paragraph A -- Delete all text in the third sentence following the comma to include the words "all" through "year".

ARTICLE VIII, Section 1, Paragraph C -- Delete all text following the comma to include the words "must" through "year".

I must also remind you that our membership roster is voided after 31 December 1977. We start anew at the January meeting when membership renewals are due again. Many of the old names will return and many new friends with their new surnames and interests will be on the scene, an exciting experience to look forward to. May I suggest that you "re-enlist" early. If you intend to rejoin the group, please get your 1978 dues to the Treasurer at your earliest convenience. It will surely help to relieve the accounting deluge that plagues the organization each year during the months of January and February.

Regarding the new membership roster -- as in the past, I believe it will be the Board's intention to publish a new roster and have it ready for distribution at the April meeting.

CARLTON M. SMITH

THE FRILLS OF GENEALOGY

By Carlton Smith

The genealogy hobby generally consists of two activities: researching and recording. Of the two, researching is probably the most interesting and the most rewarding. The recording of notes on the various forms and the follow up indexing and documentation is less fun. Indeed, it can be a chore. There are, however, a few innovations that could be put to use which can result in overcoming a chore while at the same time making your records more interesting and appealing to family and friends be they genealogy "bugs" or not. These are some of the frills of genealogy which may be time-consumers, but may make the difference between just another family tree and one with the sparkle and animation of the traditional Christmas tree.

Color The Lines. The lines on a pedigree chart connect parents to offspring. This is well known to the genealogist and fairly obvious to anyone else viewing such a chart. Color-coding those lines adds a whole new dimension to the chart. Not only does the color brighten the page, but it can give immediate information about the source and its reliability which forms that tie of parent to offspring.

In Part I, Chapter V of the American Society of Genealogists' book "Genealogical Research: Methods and Sources", Volume I there will be found a chart entitled "General Rules for Judging the Reliability of Genealogical Evidence". It puts various sources of evidence into 10 classes or categories. By applying a color code to each of these categories and coloring the lines on the pedigree chart accordingly, it becomes immediately apparent what the source was which provided the parent to offspring connection.

As an example, suppose we learned from a published genealogy that our ancestor #12 was the son of #24 and #25. A published family genealogy is category seven and let us assume we assigned the color orange to that category. We can now draw an orange line parallel to the existing black line that connects ancestor #12 to #24 and #25. The situation can be much more complex at times. As another example, suppose we know that #12 was the son of #24 because of some church record (category four); that #24 and #25 were married because it was so stated in a published genealogy (category seven); and that family tradition handed down through the generations (category nine) had always identified #25 as the mother of #12. Now we would deal with three different colors; one from #12 to #24 to identify category four, one from #24 to #25 to identify category seven and one from #12 to #25 to identify category nine. Obviously a page could become almost cluttered with too much color. An alternative is to let one color represent categories one through three, another represent four through seven, etc. In this manner there would probably be no more than three colors on any one pedigree chart.

Compare Dates. Dates are usually found on every chart, page or form in the files of a genealogist. They are critically important and vital in the identification of each person in the record, but sometimes they may lose some of their overlooked bonus effect. Consider a comparative study of dates. You may find many interesting and revealing facts if, for instance, you determined how many of your ancestors, descendants and collateral relatives were born, married or died on the same day of the year.

To make this comparative study will take some time and the purchase of a large size book of diary format -- one page for each of the 366 days of the year, remembering that some events will fall on the 29th of February date even though it only occurs every four years. The time involved will depend on the total number of persons you have in your records. The expense of the purchase should be nominal and the attention and interest the completed project will get at a family reunion will be rewarding. In my own experience I have found that the younger generation was more interested than the older. They were first attracted to it by seeing their names listed then were quick to notice who else in the expanded family also appeared on the same page (date). In at least two cases it was the stimulus for further genealogical research by the younger folks.

No particular format is required, but a recommended design with appropriate entires follows:

YEAR	7 (Day)		May (Month)
	BIRTHS	MARRIAGES	DEATHS
1479			John Chauncey
1637	Jedediah Strong
1730		Elnathan Ives and Abigail Frisbie
1850	Magnus P. Johansson
1857	Johan C. Friberg
1920	Sybil Wessendorf
1922	Grace E. Linn
1935	Helen J. Ahrens
1954	Susan B. Branden
1976			Arthur W. Petersen

When she viewed the above page at a recent family reunion Susan B. Branden was quite surprised to see that she shared a birthday with her great grandfather, Johan C. Friberg; the brother of her great grandmother, Magnus P. Johansson and a third cousin, Grace E. Linn, who was 32 years her senior. Susan also never realized that a cousin, once removed, Arthur W. Petersen, had died on her birthday in 1976. Learning this, she immediately asked who the others on the page were and if they were relatives.

Jedediah Strong's sister married the great great grandson of John Chauncey. Obviously the two men were not blood relatives and over 150 years separated their birth and death. In such cases as this the time and relationship is so remote it is not likely that much interest would be aroused. It could, however, be used as a contest subject. Viewers could be told that the men are distantly related then challenged to find the relationship by searching the pedigree charts and family group sheets.

Relate To History. The dates of birth, marriage and death of our various ancestors take on a whole new meaning if they are tied to history. That a relative was born, married or died in the year of 1889 may be a fact, but it is a rather sterile fact. It becomes much more noteworthy and interesting if we knew that in that same year the air brake was invented, Jawaharlal Nehru was born, Jefferson Davis dies, Benjamin Harrison became President, in Pennsylvania there was a disastrous flood at Johnstown, the Eiffel Tower was opened in Paris, John L. Sullivan became heavyweight boxing champion, and Carlos I took the throne in Portugal. These additional facts may not be earth-shaking, but at least they give us a feeling for a time in history and help us to relate our ancestor to that period of time. It adds a new dimension to genealogical information.

This tie to history becomes even more interesting and meaningful as we go back further in time than the example just given. I was surprised to realize that my earliest recorded Smith was a contemporary of George Washington. For some reason I had never placed them together in history and when it became apparent to me it seemed that our early American history was not so far in the past after all. In short, I gained a new appreciation of history and it felt like my ancestors were truly a part of it.

The tool or format to be used in visualizing these relationship to national and world history is a fairly simple one. Down the left hand edge of a large sheet of paper or series of pages from a columnar pad, the years are listed approximately one inch apart to allow for multiple line entries in the various columns to the right. The actual years listed depend on the span of time in which the individual compiler is interested. The first and earliest year listed may be 1776, our independence; 1620, the Mayflower landing; 1492, the New World discovery; or any other year of significance in history or the compiler's genealogy. The last and most recent year listed would normally be the present year.

The rest of the chart is a series of column in which various events are recorded on the line of the appropriate year. The first column should be the name of the ancestor/ancestors who were born or died on any particular year. The other columns would be labeled Discoveries, Inventions, Royal Reigns, Presidential Administrations, Births & Deaths of Famous People, Wars, Disasters, Great Records & Achievements, Statehoods, National & World Population Counts, and other categories the compiler may consider important.

When completed a portion of the chart may look like this:

Year	Ancestors' Births & Deaths	Inventions	Famous People Births & Deaths	Presidents	Disasters
1884	Lucy Hill (D)	Linotype Machine	Harry Truman(B)	Arthur	Tornado in Cent. US 800 dead
1885	Aaron Gouldy(D)	Adding Machine	Chester Nimitz(B) U.S. Grant (D)	Cleveland	Blizzard on East Coast 400 dead
1886					Haymarket Massacre
1887	Minnie Friberg(B)	Automobile			Opera fire in Paris 200 dead
1888	Carl Smith (B)	Camera	John Foster Dulles (B)
1889		Air Brake	Jawaharlal Nehru (B) Jefferson	Harrison	Johnstown Flood
1890	Julia Knight(D)
1891		Color Photography	Earl Warren (B)
1892	Louis Routzahn(B) Nola Hazard (B)	Carburator
1893	John Smith (D)	Gas-driven auto in US	Mao Tse-Tung(B)	Cleveland
1894		Wireless			Forest Fire in MN

After recording the various events and names on the line of the appropriate year it is merely a matter of moving from left to right on the chart and watch history unfold. Our ancestors may not have played a key role in history, but they were there when it happened and that fact tends to make both history and genealogy a little more alive and interesting for us all.

INDEXES OF THE RECORDS
IN SANTA BARBARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA

Marriage Records, Various Dates Compiled by Carlton Smith

Note: These records were found in an old book entitled "Book 1, Declaration of Marriages". They appear to be marriages which were recorded at a date subsequent to that which the bride and groom claimed the ceremony took place. Some may be certifications to replace a lost license or record, or a common-law marriage made legitimate. Some may be marriages at sea which were recorded at a later date.

QUERIES

ANCESTORS WEST will accept queries from anyone and will print them free of charge as space permits. They will be edited to some degree, but every effort will be made to publish them as submitted, especially the spelling of names and localities. In an effort to make them easier to read while conserving space at the same time, a minimum of abbreviations will be used. The two-letter abbreviations authorized by the U. S. Postal Service will be used to identify States. Birth, death and marriage are abbreviated in the traditional b, d and m.

Each of us is inevitable.

Each of us limitless--each of us with his or her right upon the earth.

Each of us allowed the eternal purports of the earth,

Each of us divinely as any is here.--Walt Whitman, 1810-1892
