AUGUSTUS FELIX HINCHMAN

In response to a questionnaire forty years later, A.F. Hinchman reckoned his arrival in California as "In the fall of 1849." Contemporaries, preparing a biographical sketch later yet, fixed the date more precisely at November 8, 1849. If that is true, and he left New York July 17, as is reported, he would have been traveling for sixteen weeks when he stepped ashore from the "Thomas Bennett." As was the case with most seaboarders, he had chosen a sea route to the west coast, favoring the two-steamers-and-Isthmus way, with the attendant risk of yellow fever, over the safer trip around Cape Horn. Whatever his expectations, the spectacle greeting his coming would have staggered him. Much of the populace had taken off in the direction of the mother lode. Newcomers were in close pursuit. In the bay and on its shores hundreds of ships lay abandoned by the crews. Homes, farms and stores were deserted. Lawlessness was rampant. What was available in staples could be had only at the most exorbitant prices. It was a scene that would discourage all but those blinded by the thoughts of instant wealth, either through removing gold from the earth or separating it from prospectors. For a graduate of Harvard who had been practicing law in New York City the thought of standing shoulder-to-shoulder with deserters, escaped criminals and other undesirables at the diggings held little appeal. It is no surprise, then, to find him taking leave of San Francisco for Santa Barbara in time for the 1850 census.

Augustus Felix (8) Hinchman, (Guy Maxwell-7 Joseph-6 Joseph-5 Joseph -4 Thomas-3 John-2 Edmond-1), was born on 15 Dec 1823 at New York City, the son of Guy Maxwell Hinchman and Susan Grandin DeCamp. His father, son of Joseph Hinchman and Zerviah Seely, was born 29 Nov 1795 at Newtown, Tioga Co., NY (now Elmira, Chemung Co.), and died 13 Feb 1879 at Dover in Morris Co., NJ. Guy Maxwell Hinchman was named for a close friend of his father in Tioga Co. At the age of fifteen, at his mother's wish following his father's death, he went to Succasunna Plains, NJ to take a position as junior clerk in the store of uncle James Hinchman. His work was divided between the Succasunna store and a supply store in Brookland, NJ where his uncle had a four-fire bloomery forge, and grist and saw mills. This launched a career that included mine management, steel production and finance. Susan Grandin DeCamp, whom Guy Maxwell Hinchman married 16 Aug 1816, was a daughter of Joseph and Jane (Tuttle) DeCamp, the latter a lineal descendant of the "Widow Ford, who came over on the Fortune," in November of 1621.

Augustus, the fourth of nine children, benefited from an upbringing that took care of his education. After graduation from Harvard in 1845 came study of law in New York as preparation for the bar, which he passed in July 1847. Then came the two years of practice in New York preceding the fateful decision that was to forever change the course of his life.

The adventurer to California, if he survived disease, hunger, brigandry, attacks by savages and assorted other disasters en route, faced more of the same on arrival. Heinrich Schliemann, later the discoverer of Troy, coming to Sacramento to settle the estate of his brother found the populations of cemeteries exceeding the settlements. His brother's fortune had vanished with his demise but Schliemann lingered on long enough to amass $400,000 as a buyer of gold dust. Many came. Few prospered. And the few seldom raised a pick or sloshed a pan. It was a time of millionaire storekeepers. Gold flowing from the mines was finding its way east through the merchants, purchasing the necessities -- and luxuries -- for daily life. It would be several decades before a practical economy would evolve in Northern California. The southern counties began to assume an increasing importance as a source of supply. Cattle from the vast ranchos had been bringing less than $15 for hide and tallow. Now the beef was in demand and they brought $75 on the hoof when driven northward. Ready to play a vital role in negotiating sales were the Yankee lawyers, Augustus Felix Hinchman among them.

Commerce was dependent on political stability. The infant local governments were under severe strain and looked to men of talent and education for the tasks of organization, men such as Augustus Felix Hinchman. The 1852 special census lists him as a farmer but by this time he had served as assemblyman in the second state legislature, justice of the peace as well as deputy county clerk and district attorney in Santa Barbara, and, reportedly, several offices in the new northern city of Benicia, briefly the state capitol. His public service concluded with a last stint as the superintendant of schools for Santa Barbara in 1858 and Los Angeles in 1862. Engaged in all this activity how would a young man find time for romance? Augustus Felix Hinchman did.

He was received into the Roman Catholic Church 26 Jul 1853 and married Maria de la Luz de Alta Gracia Cota 11 Aug 1853. Maria was ninth in the brood of twelve of Francisco Atanasio Cota and Maria de Jesus Olivera. She was born in Santa Barbara 1 Aug 1828 and baptised 2 Aug at Mission Santa Barbara. Her mother was born in San Diego 1 Jan 1791, daughter of Juan Maria Olivera and Maria Guadalupe Briones. Her father, son of Pablo Antonio Cota and Rosa Maria Lugo, was baptised on 18 Aug 1797 at Mission San Gabriel. He died on 21 Aug 1851 at Santa Barbara. Pablo Antonio Cota was born about 1744 at El Fuerte, Sinaloa, Mexico, a son of Andres Cota and Angela de Leon. He married Rosa Maria Lugo on 30 Nov 1776 at Mission San Luis Obispo. Rosa was born about 1763 in La Villa de Sinaloa, Sinaloa, Mexico, daughter of Francisco Lugo and Juana Maria Martinez. Pablo was a soldado de cuera accompanying Ortega to San Diego. Later he served Portola and Serra as a trailblazer, contributing to the selection of the sites and construction of missions. He was buried at Santa Barbara on 10 Jan 1797.

Augustus Felix Hinchman and Maria Cota had three children: Rosa Susanna, born 29 Aug 1854 at Santa Barbara; Guido Cota, born 26 Sep 1855 at Santa Barbara; Stella Gracia Cota, born 5 Oct 1858 at Santa Barbara.

In 1860 Hinchman entered into a partnership with General Phineas Banning in Los Angeles. Rosa, 6, was left with the Thomas Dennis family, where she is shown on the 1860 census. Maria Cota de Hinchman took the other children east with her to Dover, New Jersey. The Banning venture proved to be a profitable enterprise and Hinchman moved to San Francisco in the year 1863, making the city his home for the rest of his life except for the year 1883, which was spent in the east. An investor in the land boom of 1870 in San Diego, he suffered substantial losses, probably from the effects of the 1873 depression.

From 1886 to 1890 he was occupied as the custodian of Spanish archives in the office of the U.S. Surveyor General in San Francisco. At the same time he acted as a translator and interpreter for that office. At this time he lived at 1526 Jackson Street. This activity was to be his last before failing health forced him into retirement.

Augustus Felix Hinchman died in San Francisco 19 Jan 1899. Burial was at Calvary Cemetery following a funeral mass at St. Mary's Cathedral on Van Ness Avenue. He left, in addition to Maria and the three children, three grandchildren, Mrs. Charles Larkin and Davis and Augusta Willey, children of Rosa, who was now Mrs. Harry I. Willey.

Maria Cota de Hinchman lived with her daughter Rosa in San Francisco for several years before moving to Dover, New Jersey, where she died 8 Nov 1925 at 97 years and 7 days. Interment was in the family plot in Dover's Locust Hill Cemetery.

MEMBER ANCESTOR TABLES, DATING FROM THE IMMIGRANT

This is the second in a series of ancestor tables submitted by members, a project with the goal of including contributions by the entire roster of the Society. Individuals are numbered in the Jacobus fashion with an extra space employed to separate generations. The names are followed by the year of birth, birthplace, date of death and place. Charts include the earliest immigrants, designated (I), a mark not accorded children in the company of the parents or immigrating separately. Unknowns are shown by the use of question marks and approximate dates by underlining.
