MARRIAGES AND DEATHS APPEARING IN THE ROCHESTER (NY) GEM IN 1834-35

The Rochester Gem described itself as a semi-monthly literary and miscellaneous journal, devoted to polite literature (essays and poetry), history, biography, morality, sentiment, wit et cetera. The fine slogan, "We'll grasp the works of nature and of art ---- To raise the Genius and mend the heart," just about tells it all. It was in its sixth volume in 1834, the year that Rochester, NY was chartered. The community of 12,252 was also served by The Rochester Morning Advertiser, a fact that did not prevent the Gem from indulging in some basic journalism. Fires were big news and the conflagration that devastated the New York City publishing district was highlighted, as was the one that swept "The Hermitage," the home of then President Jackson. What is interesting to the genealogist, however, is the occasional inclusion of marriage and death notices. Ones gleaned from 1834 and 1835 are presented, followed by a piece devoted to George Robert Twelve Hewes, last survivor of the Boston Tea Party. While writing styles have changed, issues have not. Smoking in Germany, ardent spirits and other social problems were confronted. The editor also put his integrity on the line when he stated, "... Some persons make a great mistake, and think it is the editor and not his newspaper, that they buy for two dollars a year."

It is notable that one of the marriages going unreported was one that merged The Gem with The Ladies Amulet early in 1834. No matter, the content and style remained unchanged. And now, what you have been waiting for, marriages and deaths published during the years 1834 and 1835 in The Rochester Gem and Ladies Amulet.

Pedestrianism and Temperance

A great match race, we learn from the Boston Centinel, is soon to take place between Col. Haskett, the champion of abstinence, and a gentleman of Georgia, who places more reliance upon the virtues of beef and brandy. The latter, it seems, has challenged the former to contend with him for a distance of 3,000 miles, and the match will come off on the first day of June, over the road between Taunton and Boston. --- The challenger is to eat per day, as a minimum allowance, 1 lb. beef, 1 lb. bread, and to drink 3 glasses of 4th proof brandy and a half pint Madeira. The parties are to be on the road at the day, or half forfeit. The challenger sets forth the bet at $5,000 to $20,000, but the money matters are to be adjusted in Carolina. The colonel is to eat his old allowance of bread and water.

Last of the Boston Tea Party

GEORGE ROBERT TWELVE HEWES

GEORGE ROBERT TWELVE HEWES, the subject of this article, was one of the patriot band that drowned the English Tea, in Boston Harbour, in 1773, and is now the only one living of that party. He resides near Richfield Springs, Otsego Co., N.Y. in the enjoyment of sound health, at the advanced age of about 100 years.

Those who would have great deeds, and splendid achievements, alone entitle one to a place in the biographic page, cannot deny to the venerable subject of this memoir, that dignity. The event in which the name, and the renown of Hewes is inseparably connected, has already been exhibited to the world in history, as conspicuously as the constellations in the heavens: not that event which was designated only by the destruction of a few hundred chests of Tea, which required only an effort of physical power, and might be effected by the momentary impulse of an infuriated populace; but an event which was to put at defiance the power of the British Parliament; which was to commence a reformation in the political condition of the world, and exhibit the rights of man in a new blaze of glory; an event in which a blow was to be struck, which to tyrants throughout the world, should echo the knell of their departing hour; an event which gave to the American character a renown, magnanimity, for fortitude and heroic achievement, unprecedented in the annals of the world.

Events seem to have been so ordered, that an unusual number of venerable veterans and sages, from the front ranks of our revolutionary conflict, have been permitted to outride not only the storm of war, but the more fatal devastations of Time, as the living monuments of their well earned fame, and to teach by their example, that moral, intellectual, and physical endowments, had proved efficient, in wresting from the hand of oppression, the fortunes of their country. The last of those immortal patriots, who sealed their names to the declaration of our independence, and proclaimed it to the world, has but recently disappeared from the drama of human life; and one of those, who with the "tomahawk and club", vetoed the unrighteous doings of the British Parliament sixty years ago, yet lives, and exhibits to our view a bold and manly visage, of which the above is but an imperfect representation, and may well inspire our veneration and respect, for the vigor, the integrity, and the intelligence of the mind, to which it is an appropriate index.

ANCESTOR TABLES

This continues the series of ancestor tables submitted by members. As in past issues, numbering is in the Jacobus fashion. Generations are spaced for greater delineation. Names are followed by year of birth and place, year of death and place. Tables date back only as far as the immigrants, who are designated (I). Offspring accompanying the immigrants or coming separately are not accorded this mark. Unknowns are represented by the use of question marks and approximate dates are set off through underlining.

QUERIES

LUSK: Need information on family of John Lusk (probably a junior), born circa 1784 in Ireland, came with parents by 1790 to Pennsylvania. Had 6 daughters; Mary (Parcell); Isabel (Carpenter); Rachel (Hillman); Margaret (Cline); Jane (Guthrie), died 1843 and Elizabeth Cochran, born 1819 in Pittsburgh, married 1838 Thomas Guthrie, Jr. and died 1901 Smith Co., KS. Descendants named Anderson (through Hillman) living Atwood St. in Pittsburgh at turn of century. The surnames Cochran and McKaig probably are connected.

COOPER: What was maiden name of Isabella, married first Samuel Cooper, (1818-1879), second Samuel Russell by 1885? She was born in Scotland ca. 1829. In Camanche township, Clinton Co., IA by 1847, thence to Elk River township in same county. By Cooper had Mary Ann, William, Joseph, James, John, Samuel, Andrew Jackson, Eliza Isabella and George.

NILES: What was maiden name of Tacy who married Rev. Robert Niles? Lived in Stephentown, Rensselaer Co., NY until shortly after 1800, when family moved to Cayuga Co., NY. Robert Niles (1758-1816) was pastor of First Baptist Church of Sempronius. Niles, NY was named posthumously for him when founded in 1833. Tacy lived on in Cayuga Co., until after 1830. Any information concerning her will be welcomed.

CHANDLER-BROOKS: Anxious for information on descendants of Jonathan and Hannah (Brooks) Chandler, 1751-1839 and 1755-1787, respectively. He married (2), Rachel Wilson, 1765-1846. Chandler line living in Crookston, MN in late nineteenth century is important link. Many in Michigan, Iowa, Kansas and Southern California.

THE Y AND WHEREFORE

Carl Yaztrzemski, erstwhile baseball player, changed the initial letter in his surname from J to Y to preserve proper pronunciation. J is a comparatively modern addition to the modified Latin alphabet we employ and has evolved into a far different sound from the I that sired it. Julius Caesar would respond more readily to a greeting in Germany or the northern countries than he would in lands using the 'Romance' languages, that have obviously influenced our modern American English. Which brings us somewhat circuitously to the point of this insert. If it wasn't disturbing enough to have to use good old solid Y, which is impossible to mispronounce, for a J, what about the case of ye and ye? The archaic ye as pronoun for you and thou offers no problem, it is as the definite article where misunderstanding sets in. While you are poring over those old wills and other ancient documents, keep in mind that the y in ye comes down from the old Anglo Saxon runic alphabet, the futhorc. Th, thorn, is the third letter and the symbol resembles a y, and is pronounced th. Thus, properly, Ye Olde Bottle Shoppe is The Old Bottle Shop, only the prices are new.

QUERIES

NILES-NYLE-NILE: Was the John Niles, immigrant who died at Braintree in 1694, the son of John Nyle and Johane Paviot baptised in Powerstock with West Milton, Dorset 19 April 1607? If his age is 'reckoned' at about 90 at his death this offers some prospect. This has been explored but with what results?

SANDYS-WALKER-HUTCHINSON: James Sandys (1622-1695) has been assigned a number of different pedigrees, attempting to link him with Edwin, Archbishop of York (1516-1588), all extremely speculative to my mind. Does someone have anything substantial on this link? Who were the John Walker and Katherine (or Sarah) Hutchinson who were the parents of Sarah, James Sandys' wife?

LANPHERE-PENDLETON: Desire information on Elizabeth Lanphere who married James Pendleton (1689-1753). Father is given as George Lanphere who died 1731.

WELBY-BULKELEY: Correspondence solicited from researchers interested in the early antecedents of Olive Welby (1604-1691), a daughter of Richard Welby and Frances Bulkeley.
