PROFILE

CAROL FORBES ROTH, the eldest of four children and daughter of JOHN BOWER and MARGARET (HOLLAND) FORBES, was born in San Diego, California. When she was seven her father was transferred to the General Dynamics facilities in Pomona and the family moved there and then to nearby Claremont, California. She grew up surrounded with puzzles of every sort, from jigsaw to crossword, and remembers her father giving the children word puzzles at the dinner table. After high school, it was a natural step to attend San Diego State College (now San Diego State University) from which her parents, aunts and uncles had graduated. While earning her BA in Mathematics, she worked in the dormitory as a Resident Assistant. A few months before graduation, Carol married STEVEN J. ROTH, whom she had met in her sophomore year.

Steve's military duty with the SeaBee division of the Navy carried them up the California coast to Costa Mesa, Ventura and then in 1971 to Santa Barbara. During these years Carol worked in the accounting departments of Ford Philco Aeronautics and Sears, Roebuck & Co. In 1979, Steve and Carol opened the doors of their own business, Applied Information Systems, Inc. They provide computer services for many local firms and also match pen pals for an I.T.T. sponsored program.

After their move to Santa Barbara, Carol joined the Goleta Newcomers Club which offered a choice of many activities. One of these was a group interested in Genealogy. Under Cathy Maddox's guidance, Carol began learning basic techniques. She and Cathy felt a need for a local society and with the help of a newspaper ad gathered 27 people together to begin the Santa Barbara County Genealogical Society. Carol served as the first president and later as librarian and treasurer. Steve also contributed to the society; first his muscle (carrying the society's books between meetings), then his skills (with Dave Kirkwood's help he built the first bookcart), and always his patience.

In 1974, Steve and Carol adopted a son, MICHAEL JOHN. In his first months he was in regular attendance at the Society's meetings. Now at age seven, he keeps his parents busy with soccer and T-ball games.

Besides her interest in genealogy, Carol also loves needlework of any kind. She has combined the two, stitching an eight generation family tree for her parents. Carol also continues to add to her stamp collection which she began when eight years old. She also paints and tries most crafts. Puzzles still interest her and Steve calls genealogy the ultimate puzzle. The Roths are active in Trinity Baptist Church and Steve has led a Bible study for couples in their home for two years. The family also enjoys camping and love exploring back roads in their Jeep.

SEPTEMBER SBOGS MEETING

At the July meeting it was voted not to hold a meeting on the regular meeting date, as it falls on the Labor Day weekend, but to concentrate on attendance at the September 19th workshop, scheduled to be held at 3740 State Street, Santa Barbara.

GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH IN MASSACHUSETTS

Few areas in this country or the British Isles equal the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for the quantity and quality of its historical records.

"Genealogical Research in Massachusetts: A Survey and Bibliographical Guide" by Edward W. Hanson, an archivist at the Boston National Historical Park, Boston, and the author of "Vermont Genealogy: A Study in Migration," Register, 133 (1979): 3-19; and Homer Vincent Rutherford, Professor of History at the University of Winnipeg, Winnipeg, Canada R3B 2E9, with acknowledgments to Ralph J. Crandall and David C Dearborn of the Society; Denis J. Lesieur of the Berkshire Athenaeum; and especially Gary Boyd Roberts of Boston, appears as the lead article pp 183-198 in the July 1981 (Vol. CXXXV) of The New England Historical and Genealogical REGISTER. Tables appended: I. Massachusetts Counties: Probates and Deeds II. Massachusetts Vital Records. An Appendix contains selected lists of a few town histories of eastern towns and single family genealogies and seventy multi-ancestor genealogies compiled by Gary Boyd Roberts to supplement the sixty similar works listed by Donald Lines Jacobus in "My Own Index", an appendix to vol. 3 of his Index to Genealogical Records (1947-1952)(New Haven, 1953).

Comment on the Hollis Social Library in 1910: "It surpassed cemeteries as the quietest place in town." From book review of Where the Past Has been Preserved: Hollis, New Hampshire, 1879-1879, Hollis History Committee, 1980, Pp. ix, 306. NERGS REGISTER, July 1981 p. 239.

Norman E. Scofield

Anyone who has been pursuing his or her own family history for several years has accumulated notebooks and folders full of genealogical data.

Most of us have experienced difficulties and frustration in trying to find specific items that we remember recording but have lost track of. Sometimes we may find ourselves repeating a search because we have either forgotten the original search or can't put our hands on the results.

At the same time the siren song of miracles of data storage and retrieval performed by computers has caused some of us who have used them in our jobs to consider using them in our avocations.

The point of this essay is to consider the ways in which a computer program can assist an amateur genealogist in pursuing his hobby.

Let us first consider the various activities of the genealogist. There is research in primary and secondary sources in libraries and archives; next there is transcription, referencing and indexing. Then analysis and synthesis, compiling individual data sheets and family group sheets - family history notes - lineage charts and ancestor tables and finally, publishing family histories and genealogies.

There may be no immediate substitute for legwork and copying the original data, although one may look forward to some day having what is now on microfilm in the vaults of LDS in Utah in a computer data bank accessible to anyone with a personal computer in his home or community library.

It is in the various data copying, sorting, indexing and collation activities that the genealogical computer program may enormously enhance our abilities to make the most of our available time.

One of the first uses of a computer is simply to store data and selectively print out items in any desired format. Next the forming of alphabetized lists such as indices of names or places or the formation of chronological lists, has been increasingly used. See, for example, the number of computer indexes of the U. S. Population census publications.

Agreed that all of the above can be made available, what else can the computer do for us? The answer is linkage. This is the process of making connections between separate items of individual history to build up a family tree structure.

All of the processes of historical research come into play here: from a collection of all pertinent facts and an immersion in the local history of a certain place and period to the generation of hunches and hypotheses fired by intuition. Then the subsection of these structures to critical analysis and the requirements of evidential proof. Certainly, the computer will not supplant the investigator in these activities but it may augment his powers; for instance, by pulling out from his data base likely candidates for linkage that he otherwise would have overlooked.

Finally, we have the abilities of a computer program to quickly insert additional data, delete old data or make changes and be ready to print out final copies in any desired format.

All of this sounds very good, but what will it cost the family researcher in time and money? For a discussion of the latter see a recent article by Jack McKay.* As to the former, this depends upon the desires and abilities of the researcher.

At one extreme he may be unwilling or unable to do more than use the computer as a useful ready-made tool. In this case he will probably elect to purchase or rent a personal computer with various standard software packages. Some of these are now available to perform rudimentary genealogical functions such as read-in of data in a fixed format and production of pedigree charts or ancestor tables from the stored data. He will still have to learn the standard input formats and control key commands to obtain the various outputs.

At the next level the investigator may be interested in learning enough of the computer programming language to enable him to modify existing programs and/or to write new ones to do whatever he wants.

Finally, the innovative individual may want to assemble a custom computer from various commercially available components and either write his own software in standard languages or, perhaps, devise higher meta-languages for family history and genealogy applications.

This interest in the application of computers to genealogy is growing; there have already been several articles about it published in both computing and genealogical journals. At least two regional conferences on the subject have been held. A bi-monthly newsletter, "Genealogical Computing" published by family researchers Sara and Paul Andereck of Fairfax, Va. is starting up and genealogical query bulletin boards have been set up by phone-linkage between computers.

Both personal computer ownership and the hobby of genealogy are in a rapid growth phase. There are going to be a lot of people trying to apply software and consulting assistance to these new users.

A number of SBCGS members have indicated an interest in early settlers of states bordering on the Ohio River.

A discussion of the organization and development of the area may be helpful. Until after the close of the Revolution, these western lands were almost entirely unsettled. By Royal Proclamation of Oct. 7, 1693, granting of land west of the Alleghenies was forbidden and on June 22, 1774, Parliament annexed the western lands to the Province of Quebec. In 1776 the only white habitations were in the southern appalachian region.

There were many claims to lands west of the Alleghenies; New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Indian tribes had claims. At the suggestion of Maryland, which had no such claims, all ceded their claims and a new territory, to be known as the Northwest Territory, was formed in 1787.

The first division of this territory occurred in 1800 when Indiana Territory was established. Ohio was admitted as a state in 1803. Michigan Territory followed in 1805 and Illinois Territory in 1809. The state of Indiana was admitted in 1816. In 1818 Illinois was formed from the southern section, the northern part being annexed to Michigan Territory.

During the French and Indian War two westward roads through Pennsylvania were blazed. In 1753 Braddock's Road ran from Alexandria, Va. by way of Fort Cumberland to Laurel Hill, near Uniontown, Pa. Forbes' Road was north of Braddock's and ran from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh.

Boone's Wilderness Road to Kentucky started near his home on the Yadkin River in North Carolina through Cumberland Gap to Boonesborough (1775) and on to the Ohio River at Louisville (1779). By 1784 there were 30,000 whites in the Kentucky County or District, still a part of Virginia. It was twenty years before this trail was passable for anything on wheels.

A turnpike system, with tollgates usually some 7 miles apart, evolved, including parts of the old Braddock and Forbes roads. The Lancaster Turnpike was the first macadam road in America - a road 37 feet wide with 24 in stone, and 62 miles long. The most important early turnpike was the National or Cumberland Road, projected to run as far as St. Louis. At first it extended 130 miles from Cumberland to Wheeling and was a 60-foot road. In the early 1800's Irish laborers were imported to build the road.

The westward movement to the Northwest Territory was in three main directions. Across New York State - From Massachusetts an overland route crossed the Hudson River below Albany, then continued to the headwaters of the Susquehanna, then down the river, merging with cross-Pennsylvania movement or going directly westward by the Catskill Turnpike and its extension to Cleveland in the Western Reserve or by a more northerly route through Albany, following the Mohawk Valley and later the Erie Canal, opened in 1825.

Across Pennsylvania - emigrants from Rhode Island and Connecticut went overland, crossing the Hudson River at the Newburgh Ferry, following along near the southern line of the Connecticut-claimed portion of Pennsylvania and across in a southwesterly direction to Fort Pitt or following the Delaware to Easton and joining the route of the New Jerseyites headed for the Symmes Purchase or those from Philadelphia.

From Virginia - Virginians moved through the Shenandoah Valley northward or westward across Kentucky. There was a Wilderness Road from Cumberland, Md., to Danville, Kentucky.

Dated of admission of the various states should be kept in mind. Vermont 1791; Kentucky 1792; Tennessee 1796; Ohio 1803; Louisiana 1812; Indiana 1816; Mississippi 1817; Illinois 1818; Alabama 1819; Maine 1820 (earlier part of Mass.); Missouri 1821; Arkansas 1836; Michigan 1837; Wisconsin Territory former 1840, state 1848; Iowa 1846; Oregon Territory 1846; Florida, acquired from Spain 1819, state 1845; Texas annexed 1845 (included a strip up across Colorado and into what is now Wyoming); Mexican Cession of 1848, embracing Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona and parts of New Mexico and Colorado; Minnesota 1858; West Virginia separated from Virginia 1861, state 1863; Alaska purchased from Russia 1867. The Carolinas and Georgia originally extended to the Mississippi River. Portions were ceded to form the states of Alabama and Mississippi.

WOODS FAMILY REUNION

My Woods Marwede

The reunion of the family of the late Supt. Edward Melven Woods of Melrose, Mass. was a marvelous affair which took place at the home of one of his granddaughters, Diane Marwede, wife of Eugene Lewis Skeen, at 5060 Griffin Lane in Medford, Oregon, the week of the 18th of July, 1981.

The Woods family has traced its ancestry back to Stephen Hopkins who came on the Mayflower in 1620, through Supt. Woods' mother, Angelina Hamilton born in Yarmouth, N. S., 13 Sept. 1849.

Relatives started to arrive all during the week by air, cars, and Mobile Homes, helping to ease the sleeping arrangements and the transportation problems to and from the airport and on side trips.

The Skeen family has a nice home and 8 1/2 acres of land so it made an ideal place to have a reunion and they were very gracious hosts. Every one pitched in to help with the meals and Dorothy Whitford from Rutland, Vt., took charge of shopping for food and planning and cooking the meals and did a great job.

The weather was perfect all week, in the 80's and 'nary a drop of rain, a little unusual for Oregon.

During the week some of the men - John Marwede, Bud Wentzel and Al West, a former builder in Santa Barbara, California, built a chicken house, which was finished in a couple of days. Apparently it looked very inviting to the younger children, as some of them decided to make good use of it before the chickens arrived, so armed with their sleeping bags they slept there for several nights leaving more room on the living room floor for the rest of the children, who slept in rows of sleeping bags. They had fun.

One of the girls confided to me that she was a little scared out there. I couldn't blame her as we could hear the coyotes howling at night and snakes were found in the wood pile in the yard. We all saw deer often only a few yards from the house.

During the week there were trips to historic Jacksonville, Oregon, a pioneer village five miles west of Medford where on of the West's most extensive displays of horse-drawn vehicles and covered wagons is shown. The ladies and children enjoyed the nice old shops and homes for lunches while the men played golf.

One of the highlights was a dinner at the Mon Desir Inn near Central Point, a few miles north of Medford near Route 5. This beautiful old house was built in 1910 by Conroe Fiero, a Chicago Millionaire, for his brice, Grace Andrews, who was starring in "Beverley of Graustark" on the stage in New York when Mr. Fiero brought her to this land where "fruit is prodigal and not a forbidden tree."

Architects Whitehouse and Foyon built the house in the center of a 140-acre estate in the Rogue River Valley. They later designed Radio City in New York. The house was the scene of fabulous parties in the early part of the century. Folks of fame and fortune from two continents gathered there. We had a beautiful dinner in wonderful surroundings.

A memorable trip was to Crater Lake, eighty miles to the north of Medford. A beautiful ride through tall pines and along the Rogue and other rivers. We took our lunch with us and sat at picnic tables overlooking the spectacular lake - such a gorgeous shade of blue.

Woods Family Reunion

The last night was the highlight of the reunion, a family show put on by many of the family. The children, ranging in age from 17 years to 20 months, outdid themselves. They planned their own programs and there was everything from piano recitals to ballet dancing, singing, a talk by one of the boys on a soccer trip to England, Scotland and Wales last summer, cheer leading routines and many more. Mabel and Dorothy Woods and Al West gave a short history of their lives. There were slides of many of the families over the years, which brought back a lot of memories and laughs. Bot West who works for Mobil Oil showed most interesting slides from one of his trips to Egypt. It all came to an end with fond goodbyes and more hugs and kisses and hopes of doing it again soon.

The following people attended this most successful reunion:

The four daughters of Supt. Woods:

BURNT TO DEATH

From the Wooster, Ohio DEMOCRAT, October 30, 1845:

A few days since, a Mr. Henderson, resident of Wayne Township, in this county, met death by falling into the fire, when deeply intoxicated. It was his practice for some years to drink to excess, and sometimes to exhibit the appearance of a man, with reason dethroned and passions in full sway; nothing however, could put a check to his folly; but rushing on in his maddened career, he met death in the awful manner above described.

This is a solemn warning to those who trifle with the bottle, and make salves of the minds and bodies which God designed for nobler purposes. It teaches such to stand back from the destruction which awaits them, and shun the rock on which Henderson wrecked his hopes and prospects. And those who deal out damnation to persons who have drank away their reason and their judgment, should learn from this, that the price of blood is upon their heads. * * * * *

To what our correspondent h-s said above, we would add, that Mr. Henderson was some fifty odd years of age, a man of family, and possessed of some property; and, aside from being addicted to the vice of intemperance, we believe sustained a fair character. He was an old resident of this county. His death, which occurred on Sunday last, was caused by falling from his chair into the fire, during a short absence of his family from the room, and from which, in consequence of intoxication, he was unable to extricate himself. After lying on the fire for, as is supposed, about half an hour, he was discovered by his daughter, who dragged his crissped and roasted corpse from the flames. An inquest was held over the body by Henry Lehman, Esq. of this town, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the above facts.

"THE INVINCIBLE IRISH": RONALD WILSON REAGAN, O'REAGAN ANCESTRY AND IMMIGRATION TO AMERICA. Available from Portola Press, P. O. Box 1225 Santa Barbara, CA 93102

Author, Patricia Meade White, member of SBOGS, who beginning in 1936 as Florence White wrote the "Amazing America" travel columns for the New York Times, introduced the book the weekend of June 20th at the first Santa Barbara Book Fair at the Museum of Natural History in Mission Canyon, Santa Barbara. Displayed with the emerald-green covered book was a large photograph of President Reagan and a copy of his letter of thanks for an advance copy, disclosing that the book meant very much to him because his father, having been orphaned at the age of six, had never known much or told him much about his family. Original personal research was done by the author years ago in Ireland primarily in connection with an historical novel about Grace O'Neill, kidnapped in 1618 and taken to Virginia. The book is well illustrated with maps, charts of lineages and family relations, and photographs secured by Kevin Joyce on a business trip to Ireland, with the assistance of Liam O'Eanlon of Shannonside Tourism and Pdraig O'Reilly, photographer, including Glen Regan and the Gap of Glendine, Slieve Bloom Mountains. The author also expresses deep gratitude to P. O. Faolain, Historian for the Ancient Order of Hibernians, for his enthusiasm and cooperation.

SANTA BARBARA COUNTY

One of California's 27 original counties. While the county was actually created in 1850, the history of the area dates back to 1542. In that year Juan Cabrillo discovered the Santa Barbara Channel and later, according to legend crossed to San Miguel Island, where he died and was buried. A second Spanish explorer, Sebastian Vizcaino, entered the channel on the Feast Day of Saint Barbara in 1602 and named the area accordingly. Fr. Junipero Serra founded the Santa Barbara mission in 1786. Santa Barbara Royal Presidio, established April 21, 1782, was the last of four royal presidios in Alta California - San Diego, Monterey, San Francisco and Santa Barbara. Santa Barbara had all three Spanish forms- Presidio representing the military; Pueblo, civil and Mission, religious.

In 1873 Ventura County was established from the southern portion of the original Santa Barbara area.
