EARLY CALIFORNIA ENGINEERS

It may be the oldest kitchen sink in California. On San Nicolas Island (one of the Channel Islands off the coast of Southern California), there is an efficient, albeit tiny, aqueduct made of two inch wide grooves - one 38 feet long, the other five - that begin at opposite ends of a sandstone bluff and converge into a waterway before spilling over the edge of the shelf. Eight shorter cracks feed the system, and a shallow, one and one-half foot wide circular basin acts as a sink.

Archeologists believe the series of cracks was carved by an ancient Indian tribe to capture the island's scant seven inches of annual rainfall and provide a constant source of water. In addition, the aqueduct was constructed over an underground aquifer, so water percolated up into the waterways, and any unused water circulated back to the foot of the bluff and was reabsorbed.

The Nicolinos - so named after Spanish explorer Sebastian Vizcaino discovered the island in 1602 and named it San Nicolas - are believed to have inhabited the island for as long as 9,000 years. But their ingenious piece of engineering probably took only a matter of days to carve into the island's soft sandstone, even though they used simple prehistoric tools. Archaeologists agree it is an important find: no other island tribe is known to have used this system, and it suggests a fairly sophisticated culture.

Although nearly dry today, when discovered 30 years ago, the waterway's collection rate was a quart every 90 seconds. Archaeologists can only speculate on how many people the aqueduct supplied - anywhere from a family to a small settlement - but it was fairly immune to drought, and probably provided a valuable source of water, rather than simply a convenience in collection.

Drought and a reliable water supply were constant problems for Nicolinos. Although they hadn't developed pottery, they did weave bottles out of grasses, and coated the insides with asphalt to make them watertight. More than 500 archaeological sites on the tiny island have turned up thousands of artifacts - suggesting an advanced, although fairly isolated, fishingbased culture.

Still, a clear picture of Nicolinos is lacking. Scientists don't know, for instance, whether the Nicolinos were related to the other island cultures. Because the U.S. Navy has controlled the island since 1946, there has been little research on the culture. Plans are underway, however, to build an interpretive center on the island, as well as to study existing finds, excavate new sites and solve the mysteries of the Nicolinos.

SLAVE SHIP MYSTERY

By Marjory Ann (Pierce) Friestad

Harold Leroy Pierce gave an inlaid checkerboard to his daughter Margory in 1947 telling her that the hinges were broken because it had been used to quell an uprising on a slave ship. He had been told that the slaves were not the problem but that was all he knew about the incident. Inside the checkerboard were the playing pieces and the picture of the elderly man (below) with inscription on the back as shown.

Several examinations of the Pierce Genealogy by Frederick Clifford Pierce failed to reveal but one Delos Pierce living during the wrong time period. (The Delos on the back of the picture was b. 12 July 1820, m. 1 February 1848 Theodosia Collins, Brookfield, Madison Co. N.Y.) Finally, a section of the book, containing unproved information, revealed a similar story and the first name of Capt. Briggs. The following information was given the author by Eliza Ellen Saxton, gdaughter of Sarah Pearce.

"Ezekiel Pierce, b. 24 March 1760, d. 10 May 1838. Sarah Pierce b. 4 February 1766, d. 24 July 1848. They married about 1785. Resided at Clayville, N.Y. Sarah's father, Nathaniel Pierce, settled near Newport, R.I., before the Revolutionary War. Nathaniel had six children. Betsy married a sea Captain by the name of Arnold Briggs. They had one son, George, who accompanied his father on a voyage when only eleven years old. They had a cargo of slaves who, instigated by two passengers, attempted to kill the crew, but were over-powered after wounding the Captain, killing his son George and the first mate. The object of the strangers was to get the cargo. Captain Briggs then retired from a sea-faring life."

Captain Briggs gave George Pierce this checkerboard. George Pierce gave this to Delos Pierce, father of John Pierce.

CITY FATHERS WRITE GRINGO LAW

In 1850 city fathers of the newly formed Santa Barbara town had to formulate laws to govern the city, as well as to govern the Council itself. One of the first acts of the City Council was to provide funds for carrying on the municipal government. "An ordinance conerning licenses" was their first official act. Licenses were exacted from every kind of business and served as the mainstay of the City Treasury.

At that time there was not a printing press. The Clerk of the Council was required to draw up two copies of all measures, one to be posted on the "eastern corner of Luis T. Burton's house", which occupied the mound where later the famous Potter Hotel was built, the other was posted on the front of Gaspar Orena's billiard parol.

From 1854 through the 1860s the Council was busy pressing its claim for land with the United States Land Commission and through the Courts. On May 31, 1872, President Ulysses S. Grant issued a patent granting the city four leagues. There were hundreds of petitioners seeking land. Carpinteria land was sold for about twenty-five cents an acre. John Coats purchased a large parcel in Montecito for seventy-five cents per acre in 1863. Tomas Romero was granted ninety-six acres at fifty cents per acre. That same year Thomas Hope petitioned for a two hundred acre tract on the Mesa, "bounded by the lighthouse land", and secured it for seventy-five cents an acre. Swampy land located near the beach brought similar prices. Although the city became an American town on the records, Castilian was still the language on the street, home and City Council. There was no permanent meeting place. Sometimes the Council met in a rented room, in one adobe or another. In 1856 they had the free use of a room in Don Joaquin Carrillo's home. It was several years before the town had a permanent place to conduct business.

ITALIAN SAYING; I came to America because I heard the streets were paved with gold. When I get here, I found out three things: First, the streets weren't paved with gold; second, they weren't paved at all; and third, I was expected to pave them.

"Mother Goose, is it true that genealogists collect information about dead people?"

"Yes, my children, and they also collect extraordinary knowledge for their search. They learn about history, language, customs, geography and much more. 'Genealogists are the most interesting people you can know. That's why I'm remembering the Santa Barbara County Genealogical Society in my estate plan. Years from now my brood will find my work and trace my path."

JEWS REMOVED FROM IGI

On May 31, 1995, an historic agreement was signed between the Church of Latter Day Saints and representatives of the Jewish community, led by the American Gathering of Jewish Holocaust Survivors, regarding posthumous baptisms of Jews by members of the LDS church. The agreement provides:

1. That all posthumously baptized Jewish Holocaust victims who are not direct ancestors of living members of the Church will be removed from the IGI; some 360,000 persons.

2. The Church will reaffirm the policy and issue a directive to all officials and members of the Church to discontinue any future baptisms of deceased Jews, except if they are direct ancestors of living members of the Church or the Church has written approval of the family.

3. The Church will confirm this policy in all relevant lifterature produced by the Church.

4. The Church will remove from the IGI in the future the names of all deceased Jews who are so identified if they are known to be improperly included counter to Church policy.

Note that the agreement refers to "Jews" not "Holocaust victims."

GETTING TO KNOW YOU By Jayne Craven Caldwell

Merna Wallace McClenathen, our "Help Wanted" gal, was born in Inglewood, CA, and grew up across a beanfield from the present day LAX airport. "I guess that tells you how long ago THAT was! Merna laughed. She graduated from Inglewood HS and says, "I disliked history classes but loved math and science and playing flute and piccolo in the school band and orchestra. She graduated from UCSB with a degree in Foods and Nutrition, and hers was the second class to graduate from the "new" Goleta campus. It was there she met her future husband, Gordon. The first year out of college was spent completing a hospital dietetics internship at the Alameda County Hospital in Oakland, CA. Gordon and Merna married the year after he finished a stint in the Air force and they lived in Long Beach for nine years. Their three children were born there. They moved back to Goleta-in-1967, where Gordon became the electronics teacher at --the new Dos Pueblos HS, and Merna soon became interested in the local area history. She joined the docent program at the SB Historical Society about 1975, and a project on the genealogy of the Carrillo family caught her eye and interested her in her own roots. "I haven't been the same since." Merna has been a volunteer librarian at the LDS Library for at least fifteen years and retired from her hospital dietetics position at Cottage Hospital two years ago to have more time for her hobbies, which are many and varied. She is involved in genealogy, music, needlework, sewing, knitting, weaving, gardening, reading historical novels and mysteries, and tending their cat and four desert tortises. "I guess I am a diversified person and maybe 'scattered' would be a better term! I am currently working on the Great American Novel, aka The Family Genealogy. Gordon and Merna's eldest son and family, and their daughter live in Goleta. A second son and his family are in Paso Robles. "We currently have three grandsons with a fourth grandchild due in October...and so the lineage doth continue."

P.S. I would be remiss if I did not say Merna is the most knowledgable person ever I've known, and she graciously and generously shares anything that will help others in their genealogical pursuit. We research eleven common lines, though they are those of her husband.

Notes on Thomas Jefferson's Sally and Her Children

By Jayne Craven Caldwell

Thomas Jefferson was an extraordinary man with very ordinary feelings. He abhorred slavery, yet, in his lifetime, owned four hundred slaves. Since he didn't approve of slavery, why then did he have these slaves? Jefferson considered that he could sell them, but knew, too, that he treated "his family" well, and were they sold, they might not fair as well. He bought or sold slaves only to keep that slave family in tact.

One such slave was Betty Hemmings of a family of slaves who for generations were house servants. Jefferson had inherited her and 134 other slaves from his father-in-law, and thought so highly of her that she was given her own plot of ground. He bought from Betty the eggs her chickens produced. She had a daughter named Sally, and therein lies a tale....

When Jefferson went to Paris, Sally, at age fourteen, brought to him his youngest daughter. Nine months later, after returning to Monticello, Sally gave birth to a son whom she named Thomas. In September 1802, twelve years later, the Richmond Recorder published a story which prompted "the scandal of the day." Cartoons of President Jefferson (now fifty-six years old) and Sally appeared in newspapers throughout the country. A parody sung to the tune of Yankee Doodle Dandy ridiculed the two and referred to Sally as his "concubine." (Their relationship obviously had continued.) Jefferson had been attacked because in public statements he had condemned "the mixing of the races", and he was considered a hypocrite. It was a black cloud over his presidency. He absolutely refused to comment.

About Sally's son, Thomas, it was said his features bore a striking resemblence to those of the President, and he was, at the time of the scandal, sent to the Woodson Plantation. Thomas took the name of Woodson, and in the years that followed, four generations of Woodson Blacks scattered to parts of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Tennesse and Texas. Though few of them could write to record this story, and even though they lost track of each other, their oral history kept the story alive that Thomas Jefferson was indeed the father of Thomas Woodson.

It is believed that all five of Sally's children (Beverly, Harriet, Esbon and Madison) were also fathered by Jefferson, for records put him at Monticello each time, nine months before Sally's babies were born. And her son, Madison, always told that Thomas Jefferson was his father.

The story has even further intricacies. Betty Hemmings had become pregnant with Sally by John Wales who was Jefferson's father-in-law. That is considered to be a fact. Betty Hemmings herself was half white, which made Sally threequarters white. (Sally was described as "mighty near white, handsome, having long straight hair.") Sally's son, if indeed fathered by Thomas Jefferson, was then seven-eighth's white.

This complicated picture perhaps weighed heavily upon Jefferson for he worked out a formula to determine just when descendants of mixed blood could return to "full white. "His theory? "Two crosses with pure white, and a third with any degree of mixture, however small, clears the issue of --Negro blood.-----Thomas-Woodson, by Jefferson's own calculations would then have been "white."

This argument about Thomas Jefferson's relationship to Sally has raged for two-hundred years. The unmistakable truth, either one way or the other, may never be realized, but the story is not necessarily implausible. In his lifetime, Thomas Jefferson freed only three of his slaves. Sally, who was his wife's half sister, was not one of them.

FACTS AND FUNNIES

A modern mother explaining to her little girl the pictures in the family photo album: This is the genecticist with your surrogate mother, and here's your sperm donor and your father's clone. This is me holding you when you were just a frozen embryo. The lady with the very troubled look on her face is your aunt, a Genealogist!

Christiana Methodist Episcopal Church: Its History...Its People. Compiled & edited by Barbara Bryant White. 1994. Paper, 159 pp. $23.00; $3.50 shipping per order. Heritage Books, 1-800-398-7709, 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite #300, Bowie, MD 20716.

For those with ancestry in the Christiana, Delaware area, this marvelous book is the perfect genealogist's resource. The author has carefully sought out scattered records for this early congregation of Methodists and compiled them into one easy-to-use, fully indexed book. Thoughtful introductions to each record source explain not only where the original may be found, but also point out the possible value to those not familiar with this type of source material. The introduction to "Class Records", for instance, states that, "The lists serve well as a substitute membership list, since no complete membership list has been found. Marital status is frequently shown. . .Though it may seem redundant to copy each page, study will show there are enough changes to make it worthwhile."

Records published here include: Trustee, Mite Society, Social, Circuit Register, individual Charge records (containing baptisms and marriages) and Cemetery records. A bonus is provided in a group of loose, miscellaneous marriage records, including some licenses issued in Maryland (thought possibly to be the legacy of a pastor who had previously served in that state).

Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New Jersey, Volume XXXII. Calendar of New Jersey Wills. Administrations. Etc., Volume III. 1751-1760. By A. Van Doren Honeyman. (1924) reprint 1994. Soft cover, 469 pp. $42; $3.50 shipping per order. Heritage Books, 1-800-398-7709, 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite #300, Bowie, MD 20716.

Skip to the middle of this inordinately long title to discover the true subject of this important volume for those with early New Jersey ancestry. Not only are wills, administrations and guardianship records abstracted here, but frequently there are abstracts of the estate inventory, as well as the posting of administrators' bonds.

Recorded wills and administrations are identified by the book and page where they may be found, while other unrecorded wills are noted by the number of the filing case in which the original papers are located.

Monongalia County. (West Virginia, Records of the District, Superior and County Courts, Volume 7: 1808-1814.(Compiled by Melba Pender Zinn. 1994. Paper, 440 pp. $30.00; $3.50 shipping per order. Heritage Books, 1-800-398-7709, 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite #300, Bowie, MD 20716.

With an index which lists surnames this handy volume can provide a great service to the genealogist doing research in Monongalia Co. during this period. The author, by presenting the court proceedings exactly as they had been deciphered, provides just the correct sampling throughout of newspaper articles and signatures to lend interest to the formal.

Perhaps being able to view military rifle specifications or personal property tax lists is not that extraordinary. Especially intriguing, however, is to be able to discover that an ancestor travelled 14 1/2 miles to be a witness at a trial, was assaulted, had a stray bull appraised or a wolf scalp recorded.

This volume provides a fascinating window of opportunity to learn about the activities of numerous residents of this area.

Poor Relief in Durham, Lee, Madbury, New Hampshire, 1732-1891. By Timothy Dodge, 1995. Paper, 137 pp. 14.00; $3.50 shipping per order. Heritage Books, Suite #300, 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Bowie, MD 20716. 1-800-398-7709.

In this study, Mr. Dodge has given us an explanation of poor relief practices in three small communities, Durham, Lee, Madbury in Strafford County, New Hampshire, from the dates of their incorporation, 1732, 1766, and 1768, respectively, down through the years to the 1890's.

The author explains several kinds of relief - "outdoor" relief, being the custom of taking care of individuals in their own homes, or boarding them with private families in the town, and "indoor" relief which meant placing the person in a local institution, or "home" facility, such as a "poor house". Original town records have been studied - town meeting records, account books, day books, financial statements - in order to gain a true and accurate picture. Stories on individual cases are outlined giving details of the problem and its solution. Informative charts have been compiled for all three towns so we can understand the costs of this care and the number of people involved.

Along the way attitudes of town citizens toward the poor and their problems are examined which although concern these three towns, mirrors the general attitude of the entire country, moving such relief from a local concept to a central authority at county and state levels.

Reading this book can help the family genealogist/hirtorian see what was happening economically and socially in our country. This would give the written family history more depth and meaning. Whether or not we ever find one of our ancestors on a poor relief roll, it would help us understand the times and the lives of all our ancestors.

There is a bibliography of original and secondary sources which offers many suggestions for further study.

SANTA BARBARA COUNTY

One of California's 27 original counties. While the county was actually created in 1850, the history of the area dates back to 1542. In that year Juan Cabrillo discovered the Santa Barbara Channel and later, according to legend, crossed to San Miguel Island where he died and was buried. A second Spanish explorer, Sebastian Vizcaino, entered the channel on the Feast Day of Saint Barbara in 1602, and named the area accordingly. Fr. Fermin Francisco de Lasuen founded the Santa Barbara mission in 1786. Santa Barbara Royal Presidio, established April 21, 1782, by Fr. Junipero Serra, was the last of four royal presidios in Alta California - San Diego, Monterey, San Francisco, and Santa Barbara. Santa Barbara had all three Spanish forms - Presidio representing the military, Pueblo, the civil, and Mission, the religious. In 1873, Ventura County was established from the southern portion of the original Santa Barbara area.
