Ramblings From Your Editor

Spring is here and I like to think of it as a time to start anew. Two improvements in easing the production of Ancestors West have occurred. After years of diligence and obvious strong self-motivation by Frank Lore, he no longer has the onerous task of typing up the new listings in the SBCGS library.

Frank always delivered 8-10 neatly typed sheets—before deadline. He has my warmest thanks; I couldn't have faced doing this job without him. Unfortunately, when I scanned the sheets my machine mutated a lot of the information, and a few hours would be spent going over the listings. It became painfully obvious to all that I am not a good proofreader.

Now, thanks to the cleverness of King Straus creating a library database, and Ted Denniston extracting it to run on my computer—I get the data on a disk. This gives me less of a chance to bung things up. This man has saved me a lot of time. Thank you!

The other time-saving trick I have finally bothered to figure out is how to create an index on my computer. Though this required only five minutes of focussed thought. At least I did it before my second anniversary of taking over Ancestors West. (I hate rushing into things!)

The only new genealogical research I can report is my interviewing my Auntie Noël. She is the eldest of my grandparent's children, and the one whose birth in 1918 saved my grandmother from deportation (as reported in the last issue.)

Her fame as the "Chinese Sally Rand" is widespread. I have discovered that mention of her as my aunt opens doors of even the most academic of sources. I found her wedding announcement put out by the Associated Press in 1945. I was particularly intrigued by the mention of her "Panties of All Nations," striptease in the last paragraph. It is one of the more interesting wedding announcements I've ever read!

Over lunch she described how she got started in her career, it always came down to "How much [money]?" She also loaned to me three negatives of formal studio poses. She no longer has prints of them—my uncle made her burn all of them upon their marriage. It gave me great pleasure to print up sets of them for her during my last trip into the darkroom. She claims that there are a couple of trunks buried in her garage from her dancing days. My next challenge is to dig them out to see what treasures have been long forgotten.

Orphan Train Riders Are Organizing

An effort is currently underway by the Orphan Train Riders Heritage Society of America to locate remaining riders and their descendants, and to collect histories of the riders. The public is requested to submit known information.

To submit histories on the riders, or membership information write: Orphan Train Heritage Society of America, PO Box 496, Johnson, AR 72741-0496.

Between 1854 and 1930 over 150,000 destitute and orphaned children were sent west by the New York Foundling Home and the Children's Aid Society (by train from New York City) in search for new homes for the children. Stops along the way were selected in advance, and advertisements were placed in newspapers announcing the impending arrival of a group of children.

Upon arrival, people were asked to choose a child and sign a contract agreeing to certain conditions, including an education and church attendance. New parents were asked to write the Society and report on the children. Today, it is estimated that about 450 Orphan Train riders survive, but not all have been located. Family Tree, Aug/Sept. 1996

FYI: An excellent children's book on the subject is Eve Bunting's Train to Somewhere. It is beautifully illustrated, and insightfully deals with the concept of being an orphan on the train.

Henry Thoreau, the great American philosopher, was dying when a priest asked him if he had made his peace with God.

"I was not aware that we had quarreled," replied Thoreau.

Journal publishes study of final days of Edgar Allan Poe

This article appeared in the San Francisco Examiner, September 12, 1996.

NEW YORK —Edgar Allan Poe didn't die drunk in a Baltimore gutter, according to the first scientific study of the writer's final days. The telltale facts suggest rabies instead.

Dr. R. Michael Benitez, a cardiologist who practices a mere block from the writer's grave, says it's true that the master of the macabre was seen in a bar on Lombard Street on an election day dreary in October 1849, delirious and possibly wearing somebody else's soiled clothes. But Poe wasn't drunk, says Benitez, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Maryland Medical Center.

He describes Poe's last days in a medical horror story as dramatic as the writer's most gruesome tales.

The author of "The Raven" entered the hospital comatose, but by the next day was perspiring heavily, hallucinating and shouting at imaginary companions. The day after that, he seemed better but couldn't remember falling ill. On his fourth day at Washington College Hospital, Poe again grew confused and belligerent, then quieted down and died.

That's a classic case of rabies, said Benitez, whose diagnosis appears in the September issue of the Maryland Medical Journal. And there are other clues, too.

During the brief period when he was calm and awake, Poe refused alcohol and could drink water only with great difficulty. Rabies victims frequently exhibit hydrophobia, or fear of water, because it's painful for them to swallow.

There's no evidence that a rabid animal bit Poe in the days before he succumbed, but about a quarter of rabies victims can't remember being bitten at all. And once a person is infected, the symptoms of rabies can take up to a year to appear.

Also, the writer was so sensitive to alcohol that a glass of wine would make him violently ill for days. Poe may have had problems with alcohol as a younger man, Jerome said, but by the time of his death at 40 the author almost always stayed clear of the bottle.

Although it has been well-established that Poe died in the hospital, legend has it he succumbed in the gutter, a victim of his debauched ways. The legend may have been fostered by his doctor, who in later years became a temperance advocate and changed the details to make an object lesson of Poe's death.

New Ways in Ohio

All requests for historical information from the Auditor of State's Land Office are now forwarded to the Archives Library Division of the Ohio Historical Society, 1982 Velma Ave., Columbus, OH, 43211-2497. The phone number of the Ohio Historical Society is 614- 297-2300.

The Auditor of State's land entry files and patent documents were donated and physically transferred to the Ohio Historical Society during fiscal year 1994-1995. This was done to ensure historical preservation and documentation of these records.

The Auditor of State's Office and the Historical Society are working together to make sure that requests for information are filled—and the historical society has designated research professionals to fill requests.

Santa Barbara Newspaper Extracts 1868-1875

Compiled by Emily Aasted and Barbara Mendoza

This introduction was edited to accomodate space constraints. Further listings of extracts will be published in future issues. --Ed.

In an attempt to help those searching for genealogical information in the 1870's in the southern part of Santa Barbara County, we have indexed and extracted such information from several of the newspapers which were in print during that time frame in the city of Santa Barbara. These early newspapers have been microfilmed from the originals and are located at the Santa Barbara Public Library. In some cases the original newspapers are located in the Bancroft Library, University of California at Berkeley. We are attempting to index the majority of the papers available on microfilm in the Santa Barbara Public Library, for the time period 1868-1880. Though the only way to get to town was via a steamship or overland coach, this was an interesting period of growth and development in the city.

The extractions are listed 2 ways. The INDEX is a one line listing, alphabetically, of all the names extracted, with a code for the type of notice, a brief description of the notice, and the newspaper source where it was found. The EXTRACTION SUMMARY gives additional information from the newspaper article or notice, when a * is placed in the INDEX listing.

Codes for type of notice:

ITEM- article or interesting item
Land- property transaction
BIO- biographical information
POL- political item
Obit- obituary
VRB- birth
VRM- married
VRD- death
ACC- accident
PRO- probate
SOC- social

Abbreviations used:

SF- San Francisco
signr- signer
SB- Santa Barbara
dau- daughter
LaP- La Patera
Ind- Indians
r.r.- railroad

The selection of information to extract was left to the individual extractor, but we faithfully listed all vital statistics, probates and obituaries, and tried to extract anything else which appeared to give information of genealogical interest about individuals. Except in a few cases, we did not list land transactions, occupations listed in commercial ads, or officers of social organizations and town officials. These we felt could be obtained from city directories, county land and property records, naturalization records, homestead data, and other sources. The Family History Library has most of these on microfilm. An interesting item we enclosed is the list of the people that signed the petition for cityhood in 1874.

The Gledhill Library, at the Santa Barbara Historical Library has Santa Barbara Newspapers from 1881, some of them in hard copy. I understand that the 1850 "Gazette" is readable at the Gledhill Library, and the public is welcome to use their facilities.

The codes for the newspapers used in our index and extractions and their microfilm reel numbers at the Santa Barbara City Library are:

How long did it take?

In 1824, it took 68 days from Rotterdam to Baltimore. In 1832, it took 58 days from Bremen to New Orleans. In 1843, 66 days from Bremen to New Orleans. In 1854 it took 47 days from LeHavre, France to New Orleans.

From 1854 to 1890 most sailing ships used steam auxiliary engines when there was little or no wind. However, many sailing ships remained in service and their fares were lower than the faster steamships. In 1893, a steamship came from Ireland to New York in only 10 days!

As if life were not complicated enough!

Some parts of the world did not switch to the Gregorian calendar until as late as 1920.

It is unwise to assume that 1753 is the correct cut-off for the US. (Alaska did not switch to the Gregorian calendar until 1867, when the territory was purchased by the US from Russia.) Several countries switched time as early as 1582. The colonies followed England, but the French and Spanish colonies followed Rome.

Any reference made to a person having been born in Virginia as early as 1728, or as late as 1863, could indicate any part of:

Santa Barbara County

One of California's 27 original counties. While the county was actually created in 1850, the written history of the area dates back to 1542. In that year Juan Cabrillo discovered the Santa Barbara Channel and later, according to legend, crossed to San Miguel Island where he died and was buried. A second Spanish explorer, Sebastian Vizcaino, entered the channel on the Feast Day of Saint Barbara in 1602, and named the area accordingly. Fr. Fermin Francisco de Lasuen founded the Santa Barbara mission in 1786. Santa Barbara Royal Presidio, established April 21, 1782, by Fr. Junipero Serra, was the last of four royal presidios in Alta California: Santa Barbara, San Diego, Monterey, and San Francisco. Santa Barbara had all three Spanish forms of administration - Presidio representing the military, Pueblo the civil, and Mission the religious. In 1873, Ventura County was established from the southern portion of the original Santa Barbara area.
